LIBERALS WIN IN NOVA SCOTIA

Tuesday's elections in Nova Scotia resulted in a great victory for the Liberals, headed by Angus L. Macdonald, who will be the new premier. According to latest reports, the Liberals will have twenty-two seats against the opposition's eight.

The new premier is but forty-three years of age, and a farmer. He is brother of Judge W. A. Macdonald, of Calgary district court.

EXTRACTS FROM GAME REGULATIONS

The most important change is the extension of the season on Hungarian partridge, making shooting of this game bird permissible at the same time as ducks. Following is the ruling: The holder of a general game license or game bird license, may hunt, shoot at, take or kill Hungarian partridge between 12 o'clock mid-day on the 15th day of September up to and including the 30th day of November.

The holder of a game license (in this district) may hunt or shoot ducks, geese, etc., from 12 o'clock noon on September 15, up to and including the 14th day of November.

The holder of any such license shall not kill or take in any one day in the month of September more than fifteen ducks, and shall not kill or take in any one day between the first day of October and the fourteenth day of November (both dates inclusive) more than twenty-five ducks, and shall not take or kill in any one season more than one hundred ducks.

The holder of any such license shall not kill or take in any one day more than ten geese, nor more than twenty-five geese in the season for which the license is issued.

No person shall in any one day take more than five sharp-tailed grouse, or in any one season, more than twenty-five, except that in the northern part of the province.

No person shall take or kill in any one day more than fifty Hungarian partridge, or in any one season more than two hundred.

No person shall for the purpose of taking, capturing, killing or destroying any migratory waterfowl, use or employ any live decoys.

While the present summer has not been a bumper one from a moisture standpoint, well-known Alberta lakes are reported to be well filled with water and ducks numerous.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES BY MAIL

For some years the provincial department of education has conducted correspondence courses in the elementary grades of school for the convenience of those unable to attend a school. Some 2,500 or more, chiefly those in outlying parts of the province, have taken advantage of these. It is now the purpose of the department to extend these courses to include instruction in all four grades of high school work, with the exception of commercial and technical courses. A small fee of $3 per unit taken will be charged to cover administrative costs.

Mr. A. B. McMurdo, of Pincher Creek, Alberta gold medalist, rendered a solo at the evening service at the United Church on Sunday last. Mr. and Mrs. McMurdo accompanied Rev. Mr. Whitmore on the trip from Pincher Creek to Mill Creek and Blairmore.

The death occurred at Burnis on Thursday last of Antonio Cortinovis, at the age of fifty years. The remains were brought to Blairmore where funeral service was conducted on St. Anne's church at 2 p.m. on Sunday, and interment was made in the Catholic cemetery. Mr. Cortinovis was a brother-in-law of Mr. A. Bosetti, of Blairmore.

BLAIRMORE INCLUDED IN MADE-IN-ALBERTA ITINERARY

An itinerary of 47 towns has been prepared for the fall lecture campaign, from September to December, by the Alberta Business Committee for its Made-in-Alberta Goods drive, A. C. MacKay, provincial secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, and secretary of the committee, announced Friday.

Mr. MacKay, accompanied by Howard Stutchbury, provincial trade commissioner, will lecture in each town on the advantage of purchasing made-in-Alberta goods when price and quality are the same.

The itinerary has been prepared by the southern section of the committee, and awaits confirmation by the northern division, after which dates will be set and the program started. The itinerary follows:

Southern Alberta: Red Deer, Innisfail, Didsbury, Carstairs, Okotoks, High River, Nanton, Stavely, Claresholm, Macleod, Bassano, Brooks, Drumheller, Hanna, Carmangay, Vulcan, Blairmore, Cardston, Taber, Three Hills, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat.

Northern Alberta: Vegreville, Vermilion, Lamont, Lloydminster, Westlock, Athabasca, Wetaskiwin, Ponoka, Lacombe, Killam, Hardisty, Wainwright, Viking, Holden, Peace River, Spirit River, Grande Prairie, Camrose, Edson, Alliance, Stettler, St. Paul, Mirror and Coronation. Fourteen of the Southern Alberta towns and nine of the Northern Alberta towns were visited by Mr. MacKay in 1932.

ALBERTA'S SUCCESS AT REGINA

A review of the winnings in the various seed grain classes at the world grain congress at Regina recently, shows Alberta's total prizes to be $24,500, with an additional $1,700 won by members of the junior, intermediate and inter-college grain judging teams. The cash prizes taken constituted more than one-third of the prize monies offered in the classes concerned. In two classes of wheat Alberta took 85 per cent of the money, and in two classes of oats won 80 per cent of the money.

$75 TAXATION DEBT ON EACH FAMILY

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—Every man, woman and child in Canada will be called upon to pay over $13 in interest on the Dominion's debts this year.

In 1914 the per capita charge for interest was only $1.68. For a family of five this means an annual taxation of $75, nearly 75 per cent of which goes to the government.

Wages and salaries have been cut, but the wages, earned by the money loaned to the government remains as high as before, but with higher purchasing power.

Misses Leina Fraser, Edna Fisher, L. Brunetto and Sarah McVey, who had been attending summer school at Edmonton, returned to town last week.

Stanley McPhail, whose disappearance from home was announced in our last issue, was discovered on Thursday evening at a point about seven miles north of Blairmore, in a rather exhausted condition, having been roaming around for some twenty-four hours with neither food nor sleep.

A Call To Service.

The prairie provinces of Canada are again this year faced with the heavy losses, and the resulting problems, which another crop failure over extensive areas brings in its wake. The Western United States are in the same deplorable state. Drouth, grasshoppers and other insect pests, wind and hail, have all taken their toll, and hundreds of farmers for the third, fourth, even fifth year in succession have nothing to show for their year's labor. It is a discouraging situation.

According to the reports of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the yield of wheat will be the smallest, with the exception of one year, since reports began to be compiled by the Bureau 25 years ago. What is true of wheat is true of other grains. Officials and inspectors of the Saskatchewan Relief Commission state that the relief problem will be as great, if not greater, than in any previous year in that province, while a Manitoba cabinet minister is reported as saying that 2,000 farmers in one section of that province will not thresh a bushel of wheat.

The enormous direct loss thus imposed on the people of Western Canada, and the largely reduced purchasing power of this country, will have a direct and adverse effect upon employment not only throughout the West but in the factories of Eastern Canada, upon our railways, and upon our national, provincial and municipal finances.

Governmental relief must be forthcoming to meet all absolute needs of people, to prevent actual suffering, to conserve the health of people—in a word, to sustain them and provide for their needs for another year in a word, this is the least that any government can do for its people; it is, in fact, a primary responsibility of any government, a duty that must be discharged.

There have been periods of crop failure all down through the ages and in all countries, and governments have had to care for their people. But plenty has also always followed famine. Discouraging as the present outlook may be, there is no cause for despair. People will be provided with the necessities of life; they are not going to be left to suffer and starve. They will have nothing to show for their year's work, it is true, but they will be able to start again next year.

But there is surely something that people can do for each other in times of discouragement and need like the present. There must be scores of ways in which people can assist and encourage each other even though they may have little in the way of available resources. While Governments must absolutely essential needs, cannot people through voluntary effort of their many organizations, and as individuals, extend not merely sympathy but practical encouragement and help to others who have suffered much more severely and are in danger of losing confidence in themselves, in their country, in mankind itself?

In this connection it is gratifying to read of the action taken by the citizens of Kananaskis town and district in Saskatchewan. Representative citizens have banded themselves together, and are promoting a relief organization for their district, which will not interfere in any way with the work of the rural, municipal, or town councils, or government relief, but which will be supplementary to all these official agencies. These citizens will themselves bring that sympathetic human touch, and provide assistance in various forms which no official body can do, but which are so essential in maintaining the morale of people.

Voluntary organizations of all kinds throughout Western Canada should appreciate the fact that, whatever the object of their organization, there is no finer, better, more important and necessary work they can do this winter than in extending co-operation in all measures of relief. There is really little excuse for the existence of any organization in our community life which does not at a time like the present forget all else but the welfare of people who are in need, and arouse its membership to assist in meeting those needs whatever they may be.

The State, representing all the people, will discharge its obligations, but let the great heart of humanity as represented by each and every one of us, and by so many of us organized under different names and for many different purposes, respond to the call, carry all the chains of life that is possible into discouraged homes, scatter all the sunshine of life that can possibly be spread about, and thus bring encouragement to those who are inclined to think there is no longer even hope left to them.

Abandon Trackage

United States Railways Find Truck

And Motor Bus Best Business

A combination of factors, of which officials find the primary one to be the rapid development of hard-surfaced highways, is causing the railroads of the United States to abandon trackage at a greater rate than ever before.

Figures in interstate commerce commission reports show 1,800 miles of track were abandoned in the nine months ending August 1, which nearly doubles the 945 miles abandoned in the entire year ending November 1, 1932.

Gardens Are Spoiled

Once famous for their beauty the flower gardens of Seville, Spain, have been turned into cabbage patches. Anarchists are reported to have invaded buildings erected for the art exhibition and are living in them rent free. They recently uprooted the rose trees and other flowers in the grounds.

Falconi flew in an inverted position two hours, eight minutes, 54 seconds, making a round trip to Santa Barbara, about 200 miles.

Barley Staple Crop In Japan

Barley, named barley (rye) and wheat constitute the staple crops raised on the upland farms in Japan. Owing to the high protein content and excellent milling qualities of Canadian hard wheat, the Japanese use it in a standard mixing substance with the softer wheats from the other countries from which Japan draws her supplies.

Few people escape an attack of summer complaint. It may be slight or it may be severe, but both the young and the old are liable to it during the summer months. You cannot tell when it seizes you how it is going to end. Let it run for a day or two and see how weak and prostrate it will leave you.

The Age Of Aluminum

Two Railroad Cars Made Of This Metal Exhibited At Chicago

David Dietz, in an article in New York World-Telegram, says:

"Two all-aluminum railroad cars are among the most interesting and most important exhibits in the Hall of Transportation at the Chicago Century of Progress World Fair."

One is a combination of coach, parlor and observation car facilities. The other is a combination of sleeping parlor and observation car. Both are gleaming, inviting works of art. On the day I visited the Hall of Transportation the temperature of 109 on the sidewalks of Chicago, and the air-cooled interiors of the two cars were the most comfortable spots on the fair grounds.

The bodies and trucks of these two cars, with the exception of the springs, axles and wheels, are made entirely of aluminum. This is the first time that this has been accomplished, although aluminum car bodies were fabricated two years ago.

To many engineers, these aluminum cars represent the direction in which the railroads must go to recover their business. In other words, they must make travel by rail so attractive and inviting that tourists will prefer it to their own automobiles.

But in addition, many engineers see more than railroad recovery in these two cars. To them they are the symbol of the new age, the Age of Aluminum.

Many railroads are beginning to turn their attention to the subject of aluminum rolling stock."

DRIVES HIMSELF TO WORK AT 82

And Still Plays a Little Golf

How many of us, when we are 82, will be equal in health and activity of this vigorous old Scottish gentleman?

"I arrived here from Scotland on the 7th April, 1870. I am over 82 years old. I drive my Ford Car 40 miles over hills and dales to a factory, and can still play a little golf. I have taken the train to Krukeness Station in my cup of coffee every morning for some years, and I believe it is keeping me in good health and enabling me to keep on working at the factories as engineer."

"Whether you are still in your 'teens' or past your prime, it is neither too early nor too late to start on the 'little daily dose.' Just a tiny taste of the plan of Krukeness. They ensure internal cleanliness, and keep the blood pure. It is refreshing and blood is sent coursing to every fibre of your being. Rheumatism, headaches, indigestion and backache all pass you by."

Functions Of Central Bank

Would Not Necessarily Do Away With The Present System

Warning against Canadians adopting the view that the particular function of a central bank, in the event such is established in Canada, is to extend credit to agriculture, was given by Professor T. E. Gregory, British economist, who addressed the Canadian Club in Regina.

"It is fundamental to my view of central banking that it should keep its hands off any one particular industry," said Professor Gregory, whose address dealt with the subject of central banking. W. G. Yule presided at the meeting.

If Canada, as a result of the work of the MacMillan commission established a central bank it would not necessitate doing away with the present banking system, he said.

Submerged Village Uncovered

A fishing village near Tellicherry, North Malabar, with a temple at one end, was submerged by the sea in 1888. With the coming of the 1933 monsoon the village gradually is being uncovered. An extensive stretch of sand has emerged connecting the site of the village with the mainland and people are visiting it searching for relics.

Wins Grain Race

First to arrive in Europe in the great annual grain boat race this year was the German four-masted bark "Privall." She left Port Victoria, Australia, on January 15 and took 100 days to reach the port. She and 106 days to arrive at Barry, England, where she unloaded 4,620 tons of bagged wheat. Eight vessels were in the race.

At the London economic conference the Germans installed their own telephone switchboard and German operators.

Poor Crop In Canada

Wheat Crop Lowest In 25 Years With One Exception

Agricultural experts thumbred record books, comparing crop conditions with those in past years. This is what they found:

"The condition of the Canadian wheat crop is the lowest in the records of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, going back 25 years, with the exception of 1931."

The barley crop is in the same position as wheat—the lowest in 25 years with the exception of 1931.

The flax and oat crops are the lowest in the records of the bureau."

Only once, in 1914, were Canadian pastures in worse condition.

The crop year 1931 was particularly bad for Canada because of drouth conditions throughout the southern growing areas of the prairies, particularly Saskatchewan. This year drouth and heat, reinforced by plagues of grasshoppers, have taken a toll of millions of dollars. Dry weather this year extended from Quebec westward to the Pacific coast.

Agrees On Wave Lengths

Canada Satisfied With Agreement For Radio Outside Broadcasting

Judge E. O. Sykes, of Mississippi, chairman of the United States radio delegation of Mexico City, in a press statement, said Canada and the other eight North and Central American countries represented at the recent radio conference, reached entire agreement regarding frequencies or channels for radio other than broadcasting. He mentioned in this classification television, aircraft, state police, point to point telephone and telegraph, coastal telegraph and telephone, ship telegraph and telephone and amateur.

He further said agreements reached on technical matters relating to broadcasting would be of great benefit. While the conference failed to reach agreement on assignment of channels for broadcasting to various countries, it agreed on certain technical regulations of this class of radio.

Ocean Space Limited

A considerable number of cattle are finished and now available for export. Ocean space, however, seems to be inadequate to meet the requirements of many producers who wish to export their own live stock. Due to the steady flow of cattle leaving Canada, this condition should remedy itself in due course. Intending shippers should try to secure space from the broker some considerable period prior to the contemplated date of shipping.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake up your Liver Bile

—No Calomel necessary

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must be in good condition. It is the liver that filters out the poisons from the blood, and it is the liver that keeps the bile flowing. If the liver is not working properly, the bile will become thick and sticky, and this will cause a host of troubles, such as indigestion, constipation, and a general feeling of weakness and wretchedness. It is time to wake up your liver bile, and the best way to do this is by using a reliable liver medicine. There is no need for calomel, which is a dangerous and poisonous substance. Instead, use a gentle and effective liver medicine that will cleanse the liver and restore it to its normal state of health.

Animals Now Given One "Free Day" Each Week

Every dog has his day—but now it's Old Dobbin's turn.

There are 30,000 equines in Moscow and they are poorly fed, badly cared for, and abominably treated, even though drivers caught beating or otherwise mistreating their horses lose their driving licenses and food carts and are liable to prison sentences.

The plan of the transport department of the Moscow Soviet has taken steps to remedy this distressing state of affairs. It has decreed that each horse shall enjoy a "free day" every sixth day, just as the human being is permitted to do in the U.S.S.R. Thus 5,000 horses will be out of service every day in the year.

The plan of the transport department for the care of its animals goes farther. It is establishing a rest home for its horses. Free green pastures for the lame and the tired, special diet for the poorly nourished, medical care for the sick.

Canadian Radio Broadcasting

Western Canada To Have Its Own Regional Directors

Western Canada will have its own organization working within the Canadian Radio Broadcasting commission and this machinery will be set up shortly, according to T. Maher, vice-chairman of the commission.

Three regional directors will be appointed for western Canada, one stationed at Vancouver, another in Winnipeg, and the third appointed from Alberta and Saskatchewan. These men will constitute a board to govern, under the commission program, the western regions chain. Mr. Maher said.

In addition there will be appointed in Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver, representatives of the commission.

A Great Rejuvenator

To Avoid Growing Old Keep Interested In Life

Consciously or subconsciously, most middle-aged people are seeking a way to cheat the calendar—to remain young though their years are many.

Dr. C. K. Millard, sixty-three-year-old medical officer of Leicester, is the latest to announce a method. He has found, by learning to fly, that "aviation is a great rejuvenator."

Almost certainly he is right—but in the wrong way. The fact is that any reasonable interest in life, whether it be flying or fishing, work or play, will help to keep a man young. In fact, the best way to avoid growing old is to be too occupied to think about advancing years.—London Sunday Pictorial.

How He Figured It

He went boldly up to the box-office at the big theatre.

"Have you three seats in the front row for the performance tonight?" he blandly asked.

"Yes, replied the girl behind the grille, with unconcealed eagerness. He smiled pleasantly at her.

"In that case I don't want them," he replied: "the show can't be much good."

While the human population of the world is estimated at 1,849,500,000, the rat population is placed at 10,000,000,000, or at the proportion of six to every human being.

Alberta Sugar Beet Industry

Has Brought Greater Stability And Security For The Farmers

Introduction of the sugar beet industry to southern Alberta has brought greater stability and security to farmers in the irrigation areas and the factory at Raymond, Alberta, is now a steady source of revenue for the grower.

Outlining the growth of the industry, D. W. Buchanan, student of western affairs, points to its success in a paper prepared for the Institute of Pacific Relations conference. Effective control has made development of sugar beet growing a great aid to mixed farmers of the area, he finds.

For the past two years the total sugar tonnage secured has run over 100,000 tons. The factory was increased to a capacity of 150 tons daily and in 1932 the factory worked 120 days to handle 150,000 tons of beets, though only planning to operate 100 days during and immediately after the cutting season.

Dealing with payments to farmers for the sugar beets, Mr. Buchanan points out the basic price varied with a bonus being paid to growers of the sale of the sugar warranted. The basic price has been around $5 and $5.50.

Canadian Is Appointed

Former Edmonton Man Made Food Commissioner For U.S.

S. W. Lund, general manager of the Edmonton plant of the Swift Canadian Company for nine years and later assistant general manager in the office of G. F. Swift in Chicago, has been appointed food commissioner of the United States by President Roosevelt under the recent agricultural stabilization bill passed by congress, according to word received by Gordon Robertson, manager of the Edmonton Swift Canadian plant.

According to meagre information received the former Edmonton man was requisitioned for the important post by the stabilization bill board because of his extensive experience and knowledge of the provision industry.

Mr. Lund was appointed Edmonton manager of the Swift Canadian plant in 1917, coming from Toronto where he had worked for the company for several years.

He left in December, 1926, to assume duties as assistant general manager in the Chicago office of the company.

WHEAT QUOTA PLAN TO CUT DOWN SURPLUS

Winnipeg, Man.—Canada and the United States are following different paths in their effort to cut down the world's wheat surplus, according to J. T. Hull, Canadian wheat pool statistician.

The Canadian wheat pools advocate a quota system while in the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is putting into operation an acreage reduction scheme, said Mr. Hull. In the Dominion, he explained, it was proposed to establish a quota, limiting the deliveries by each individual farmer to his country elevator.

The quota would be based on the farmer's average deliveries over a period of years.

"The plan in Canada, whether acreage reduction or not, and how much, would be left to the individual farmer but he could not sell more than the quota allotted him," said Mr. Hull.

The Canadian system, he claimed, had several advantages. It did away with the need for compensation, which was provided for in the U.S. by a processing tax. It gave the farmer more latitude, the statistician declared. If weather proved adverse, he was protected. He could use any surplus for feed, or store it.

Small Wheat Imports

Little Prospect Of Expanding Wheat Trade With France

Ottawa, Ontario—Arsene Henry, French minister to Canada, who has just returned from a vacation abroad, says very little prospect of France expanding her purchases of Canadian wheat. At the same time, the minister thought the recently-proclaimed Franco-Canadian trade treaty had been practically neutralized by the disparity in exchange between Canadian and French currency.

"France imports very little wheat," the minister said, "and is able, in fact, to supply her own needs. When you see reports to the effect that the French Government insists upon French bakers using 98 or 99 per cent. French wheat, you must assume that this is directed against Canadian wheat, for as a matter of fact, the variety which Canada exports is not the same type of wheat used in the making of French bread."

France produces and uses soft wheat, while you export the hard variety."

The minister thought the exchange rates militated against France securing any increased volume of trade with Canada, although these operated to Canada's advantage and might result in an upswing of Canadian exports to the republic.

Prince Likes Biarritz

Is Spending Holiday At Popular Resort In France

London, Eng.—Hatless and wearing a grey lounge suit, the Prince of Wales took off by aeroplane from the lawn of his home at Fort Belvedere, near Windsor, bound for Biarritz, France, where he will holiday the rest of the month. The prince will spend most of his time at the Chiberta Country Club. He will visit friends with homes in the vicinity for a few days.

The prince always receives a hearty welcome in France, where he maintains the tradition established by his grandfather, King Edward.

The prince is a fond of Biarritz because the inhabitants and visitors restrain their curiosity over his movements.

Tax Revenues Increase

Figures For July Higher Than Corresponding Month Last Year

Ottawa, Ont.—For the first month since the beginning of the current fiscal year Canada's revenue from taxation in July showed an increase over collections for the corresponding month last year. The national exchequer came out of it $642,920 to the good. For the four months, however, revenues were down by $9,153,457.

The improvement was due to excise taxes which last month totalled $8,589,136, as against $7,510,966 for July, 1932, or a betterment of $1,378,170. This gain was partly offset by a drop of $406,900 in excise duties, $275,747 in customs duties, and $52,902 in sundry collections. However, with the declines balanced against the gains, revenues were still on the right side.

Christians Massacred

Reported 300 Assyrians Slain By Iraq Troops

London, Eng.—The Daily Herald reported today that more than 300 Assyrian Christians had been massacred in a village in northern Iraq within two miles of an Iraqi army camp.

The killings were attributed to the commander of Iraqi troops in northern Iraq, who was said to have used Kurds to attack the Assyrians as they were returning from French Syria after recent border disturbances.

The commander also was alleged to have caused 14 Assyrian prisoners to be summarily shot.

The Herald said the affair would be investigated by the League of Nations.

Investigate Cuban Affairs

Probe Bank Accounts Of Deposed President Machado

Havana.—Bank accounts and properties of the deposed President Gerardo Machado and his followers were investigated with a view to requisition by their creditors.

Secretary of the Treasury Joaquin Martinez Saez, a leader in the A. B. C. Secret Society, began the probe as Provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes' administration weeded out persons suspected of profiting by the Machado regime.

It was reliably reported embargoes are planned on fortunes and property of the Machadistas.

Reports from the Bahamas said the ex-territory president planned to rent a place near Nassau.

Trial Shipment Possible

Cattle Available For Export Via Hudson Bay Route

Saskatoon, Sask.—Possibility of a trial shipment of cattle to England this fall via the Hudson Bay route still exists, according to information gained here.

A large livestock company, in a communication to the Saskatoon Board of Trade, pointed out that the firm could furnish 200 head of cattle for such a shipment. This company is in communication with overseas buyers.

It also is known, too, that a limited number of cattle suitable for overseas shipment still are available in the Saskatoon district.

Discuss Bus Competition

Toronto, Ont.—In a special despatch from its Ottawa correspondent, the Globe says another conference of representatives of the Federal and Provincial Governments will be called to meet in November by Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, to deal with the problem of bus and truck competition with the railways.

Wheat Grades Vary

Ottawa, Ont.—The wheat harvest in western Canada is proceeding rapidly and early threshing results show a great variation with grades generally high, states the weekly telegraphic crop report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Alberta's Debt Reduced

Edmonton, Alberta.—Reduction of $4,371,458 in Alberta's public debt is indicated in the first quarterly statement of the provincial government issued recently. This leaves the net funded and unfunded debt, as at June 30, at $140,237,274.

Fisher Body Contest

Saskatchewan Boy Winner In Canadian Western Section

Chicago.—Joseph Olafson, Midway Park post office, Leslie, Saskatchewan, was awarded one of the Canadian scholarships in the Fisher Body Craftsmen's guild contest.

His award was in the senior Canadian section, and he, with David Tennant of London, Ont., topped senior Canadian entries in this year's contest.

R. Guthrie, also of London, Ont., was given chief Canadian award in the junior section.

One hundred and twelve preliminary winners in Canada and the U.S.A. attended the banquet at the armories here to learn who would be the four American and the three Canadian boys to be awarded $5,000 university scholarships.

R. S. McLaughlin, president of the Canadian section of the Fisher Body Guild, announced the Canadian awards. Olafson was the winner in the senior competitions of the Canadian western provinces.

British Columbia Floats Loan

Part Of $3,000,000 Bought By Victoria Syndicate For Relief

Victoria, B.C.—Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, announced recently he had floated a loan of $3,000,000 at a cost to the province of 5.67 per cent.

One million dollars of 20-year five per cent. bonds was sold outright to a syndicate here. This sum will be used for unemployment relief.

The same syndicate took an option on the additional $2,000,000 on the same terms.

JAMAICA FLOODS CAUSE HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

Kingston, Jamaica.—Seventy persons were drowned in floods which struck this city and the parishes of St. Thomas, St. Catherine and St. Mary, following a storm accompanied by lightning and high wind.

The damage was estimated at approximately $2,000,000 as bridges and buildings were swept away and banana plantations leveled. One hundred houses were abandoned as they were damaged so badly.

The government established relief stations to care for the homeless. The storm, which lasted six hours, was described as the worst in 80 years.

The water rose as high as six feet in the streets, and rushed through dwellings, washing away many occupants trapped within. Two children were swept away from their mothers' arms by the floods and drowned.

The weather had improved later but the suburbs and the city were strewn with wreckage. Many houses were struck by lightning and railway and telephone services were disrupted.

Known deaths were confined chiefly among the poorer residents, trapped in the low-lying district adjoining the rivers.

In the rural sections of Jamaica, communication lines were down, and it was impossible to estimate the extent of the damage.

FEARS STRIKE POSSIBLE

Senator James Murdock, Chairman of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who stated at Montreal recently that if there was no change in the attitude of the railways on the second wage cut he believed the running trains would go on strike throughout Canada.

Seaplane Tragedy

Three Lives Are Lost In Crash In British Columbia

Vancouver, B.C.—Fog hovering over Anderson Lake, 115 miles north of Vancouver, was believed responsible for loss of three lives, one of a woman, and serious injury to two other occupants of a seaplane which crashed into the lake at dusk Tuesday evening. A sixth occupant was slightly hurt.

The machine, piloted by Gordon K. Mackenzie, left Vancouver for Bridge River carrying five passengers.

Ernest Dean, 38, with his wife, a bride of a few months, bound for Bridge River, and W. J. Butt, 50, Vancouver, business man and proprietor of McKillivray Lodge, near the scene of the accident, lost their lives, while Fred Mackenzie and Ole Deemer, Prince Rupert mining man, suffered fractured skulls and other injuries.

A. Gray Parker, sixth occupant of the machine, escaped with only minor hurts.

Returns From Northern Trip

Major-General MacBrien Inspects Posts At Herschel Island

Edmonton, Alberta.—Major-General J. H. MacBrien, C.M.G., D.S.O., commissioner of the R.C.M.P., arrived here after making an aeroplane trip as far north as Herschel Island to inspect posts. He made the flight from Herschel Island in 48 hours aboard an R.C.A.F. Fairchild piloted by Squadron Leader E. L. McLeod.

The commissioner expressed himself as delighted with the trip. He had no announcements to make, beyond stating that there was a possibility of some changes.

French Filers Greeted

Paris, France.—Several thousand persons cheered Maurice Rost and Paul Codos at the city hall, where they were greeted on behalf of the city of Paris in recognition of their recent flight from New York to Rayak, Syria, which set a new distance record.

INVITED TO SET NEW RECORD

When asked by Major Louis D. Taylor, to make a flight across Canada, possibly non-stop, the smiling British flying family of Captain Jim and Amy Molson stated they will certainly bear it in mind. Unfortunately they will take two months to have a plane ready for the long hop from Vancouver to Halifax and the idea has been fied away for future reference. Our pictures show the intrepid flyers who successfully navigated a non-stop flight from England to the United States only to crash within sight of their goal. Inset is a picture of Vancouver's popular Mayor.

Recompense Farmers

Millions Of Dollars To Be Paid To United States Growers

Washington.—Millions of dollars in benefit payments to cotton and wheat farmers for agreements to curtail their production will be freed under a policy made public by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., governor of the farm credit administration, after approval by President Roosevelt.

Under it, payments will be made to cotton farmers, who agreed to plow up 25 to 50 per cent of their growing crops, without requiring deductions for amounts they owe the government for seed and crop production loans.

Morgenthau said a similar policy will be pursued in the case of payments to be made this fall to wheat farmers for agreements to reduce their acreages planted for harvest in 1934 and 1935.

About $60,000,000 is scheduled for distribution to wheat farmers and $110,000,000 to cotton farmers.

Where the farm credit administration has a claim against the farmer, the benefit checks will be made out jointly to the farmer and the administration.

U.S. Recovery Plan

Entire World Is Watching Results With Interest

Washington.—Prime Minister G. W. Forbes, of New Zealand, a visitor in Washington, says in a statement that in his opinion not only the United States but the entire world has a "vital stake in the success of President Roosevelt's recovery plan."

"New Zealand is following the course of business recovery plans in the United States with the keenest possible interest, and with every hope that they will be fully successful."

DECREASE IN RELIEF COSTS IS FAVORABLE SIGN

Toronto, Ont.—A substantial drop in unemployment relief costs throughout Canada in the last two months is giving governments, national, provincial and municipal, grounds for hope that the load is being more than seasonally lightened.

There is a gradual tapering off in expenditures may be expected. Figures gathered by the Canadian Press in Ontario and the western provinces reveal a considerable flow from relief columns to regular pay rolls as industry slurs here and there into new life.

In Ontario where relief expenditures reached a total of $17,000,000 in the eight months between November 1 last and July 1 this year, the feeling prevails that the 25 per cent drop in direct relief costs in May and June reflects decided improvement.

In British Columbia ranks of unemployed were thinned to the extent of 22,000 between March and June. The number of men in federally-maintained camps was also reduced by about 2,000 in that period.

The numbers under provincial care in March were 132,838; April, 125,405; May, 120,515, and June, 110,489. Improvement in the relief situation is due to the fact that thousands of men have been absorbed by the lumbering, mining, and fishing industries. Coast lumber companies are reported to have resumed logging operations on a large scale.

Relief costs in Alberta have not been reduced quite so much as in B.C. Expenditure in May, June and July totalled $28,230, compared with $674,725 in February, March and April. Family relief increased slightly and single unemployed relief dropped $31,000 in the last three months.

Urban centres in Saskatchewan had 27,700 (partly estimated) persons receiving direct relief in July at a cost of $140,050, the lowest for any month of the year so far. In March, 36,394 obtained direct relief at a cost of $231,980.

In Manitoba direct relief costs dropped from $438,309 for 76,437 persons in April this year to $374,215 for 61,178 persons in June. In April also there was an outlay of $78,632 for indirect relief, benefitting 552 persons and no indirect relief expenditure in June.

Prince Edward Island reports a greater demand for relief this year than last. For the months of May, June and July, 1932, provincial expenditures totalled $5,494, and for the same months of this year combined provincial and municipal expenditure was $11,706.

Nova Scotia figures have not been compiled but officials report "some improvement over last year."

RAILWAY WAGE SUIT MAY BE STARTED IN WEST

Ottawa, Ont.—Legal action to recover monies deducted by Canadian railway companies from employees since February 1 last probably will be initiated in one of the western provinces. This indication was given by Senator James Murdock, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in an intimation that suit would not be started in Ontario or Quebec. Definite decision, however, has yet to be made.

The contention of the men is that basic wages were automatically reduced by the expiry on January 31 last, of the February, 1932, agreement for a 10 per cent. cut for a year. Notwithstanding this fact, the employees claim, the companies continued the 10 per cent deduction three months beyond the expiry period and after the railways put into effect an additional 10 per cent. deduction from the basic rates.

Montreal, Quebec.—There is no question in the minds of railway officials with regard to the absolute legality of the wage deductions that the railways have been compelled to make as a result of present conditions. It was declared in a statement issued by acting President S. J. Hunferford of the Canadian National Railways, and Vice-President Grant Hall, of the Canadian Pacific Rail way.

"The statement was made in reply to queries regarding the suit against the railways reported to have been threatened by Senator Murdock, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. 'We would not, of course, allow deductions from wages of employees, if we believed them to be illegal,' the railways' statement said.

To Aid U.S. Farmer

Processing Taxes On Wheat and Cotton

Washington.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told newspapermen there was a prospect of additional processing taxes on wheat and cotton if the price of the products continued to decline.

"The processing tax is a levy paid by the manufacturer or processor of wheat and cotton, which in turn goes to the farmer in benefit payments for his agreement to cut production."

In the case of wheat, the present tax is 50 cents a bushel and on cotton it is 42 cents a lint pound. The effort will be made, he said, because of a large surplus of grain in that area which they believe will have a depressing effect upon prices of wheat in other sections of the country.

At the same time, Secretary Wallace told newspapermen he had received word from friends in Europe: "here is an increasing prospect of an international wheat production curtailment agreement being reached at the London conference which will be reconvened on Monday."

"It is hard for me to believe, though," Wallace said. Earlier he said a program of "subsidized exportation" of wheat will be undertaken in the United States in event that other of the chief wheat-producing nations fail to reach an agreement for curbing their output.

Current Slang

Filipino Member At Pacific Relations Conference Has Technique

Bank, Alberta.—Penetration into Pacific countries of current North American slang was indicated here, at a round table session of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

A Filipino member, discussing the trend of Japanese population in Japan, mentioned the volume of immigration and migration altered with economic circumstances. "When times are good," he concluded, "they attack around; but, when times are bad, they beat it."

Flood Destroys Crops

Peiping, China.—Missionaries at Tsao-Chowfu in Shantung province telegraphed the China famine relief commission saying a break in a Yellow river dike had caused a flood over an area 50 miles long and 20 miles wide between Tungning and Tsao-Chowfu. All crops were destroyed, the message said.

No Change Yet

Washington.—Inquiries at the White House on President Roosevelt's policy for inflation and managed currency brought the response that there had been no change and that future action depends on conditions.

WHEN THE ROYAL WILLIAM
LIAM MADE HISTORY

In these days when fast and palatial ships ply the seven seas it is interesting to note that the Royal William just one hundred years ago—was famous for herself and her captain as the first vessel to cross the Atlantic using steam all the way. She was built in Quebec, and was originally intended to create a bond of union between the old French province by the St. Lawrence, the old British provinces by the sea, and the new British province by the lakes. Instead, her distinction was attained through demonstration of the feasibility of navigating oceans by means of steam-propelled vessels.

The enterprise of her building was fostered by a subsidy granted by the government of Lower Canada, and carried out by a group of Quebec and Halifax merchants, which included the three Cunard brothers. On September 2, 1830, the keel was laid in Black & Campbell's shipyard, situated at Cape Cove, a mile above the citadel and directly in line with the spot where Wolfe died after the Battle of the Plains. The ship was designed by, and built under the supervision of James Goudie, a young foreman-designer of Canadian birth, who learned his trade in Scotland. Her engines were constructed by the firm of Bennet & Henderson, Montreal, the senior member of which, John Bennet, had served his apprenticeship with the firm of Boulton & Watt, of Glasgow.

The launching of the ship took place towards the end of April, 1831. Without any knowledge of the distinction for which she was destined, the occasion of her launching was marked as one of truly national significance. The mayor of Quebec declared a public holiday, a guard and the band from the 22nd Foot were drawn up near the ship, the runners of the Royal Artillery awaited the word to fire the salute from the new citadel, and the whole community were there to applaud. Lord Aylmer, the governor-in-chief, attended as the representative of King William IV, after whom the vessel was named the Royal William. Lady Aylmer took the bottle of wine which was wreathed in a garland of flowers, and throwing it against the bows, pronounced the historic formula "God bless the Royal William and all who sail in her."

The Royal William left Quebec on August 24, 1831, on her first trip to Halifax and intermediate ports. Three round trips were made during that short season, all of which were moderately successful. The next year was not such a prosperous one, owing partly to restrictive quarantine regulations imposed on account of a cholera epidemic. The owners were forced to tie up the vessel for a large part of the season, and suffered heavy financial loss. In the spring of 1833 she was sold by charter sale to the mortgagees, and was employed for a time by her new owners in towing, and in local excursion business. After a trial trip to Boston her owners decided to send her to England for sale. It was this voyage which gave the Royal William a place in history. Early in August of 1833, she left Quebec for Pictou, where she remained for several days coaling, repairing her boilers, and awaiting passengers. On August 17, under the command of Captain John McDougall, she steamed out of Pictou harbor to test the power of steam against the waves of the Atlantic. Her Pictou customs papers read:

Royal William, 265 tons; 26 men. Master—John M. McDougall. Whittier—sailed—London. Containing goods—exported—254 children of coal, a box of stuffed birds—ship spar (produce of the Province), one box, one trunk, household furniture, a harp and seven passengers, all British.

The voyage soon became eventful. Heavily laden with coal, she encountered a heavy storm off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland. Her starboard engine was disabled; she began to leak; and the engineer came up to tell McDougall she was sinking. But the captain held his course, started the pumps, and kept the ship under way for a week with only one engine going. Eventually she reached London, the passage from Pictou taking twenty-five days.

LIFE IN 2106 ANNO DOMINI

No skyscrapers will be standing two centuries hence, prophesies Wells, British historian and novelist. They will have been demolished to make way for larger, finer, more livable cities. Social life will be organized around public clubs in which will be grouped sports halls, perpetual news cinemas, studios, and social centers. In the current Rotarian magazine, Mr. Wells sketches a graphic pre-view of the world of 2106 A.D. as he will give it in a history written as that year.

"The twenty-first century," he says, "re-discovered an experience of the nineteenth century and the first centuries of the Christian era, a discovery also made by Alexander the Great, that it is much easier to build great modern cities in new places than to modernize the old centers of activity. And the more vital these old centers remained, the more difficult was their reconstruction. New York was typical of this lag in rebuilding. Up to quite recently, lower New York was the world's most old fashioned city, unique in its gloomy antiquity. The last of the ancient skyscrapers, the Empire State building, is even now under demolition in 2106."

Mr. Wells foresees a new era of homes, quickly erected and even more quickly demolished. "We no longer think it meet," he writes, "to wear another man's abandoned house than to wear clothes of the dead." And speaking of clothes, he recalls the filthy twentieth century, when men would wear their underclothes for years, having them painfully washed out, dried, ironed and returned weekly, and they would wear their complex outer garments with all the old fastenings, buttons, straps, buckles, and so forth, sometimes for years. They had to be made of dark fabrics with broken patterns to conceal their grime." But in the new day, he goes on, clothes are scanty and healthful, and are replaced at least every three days by new garments. Nothing is washed. Laundries are forgotten. Cobblers are unknown.

And in the world of 2106 travel becomes the simplest of matters. Mr. Wells sees the ordinary man of that day, arranging overnight for a vacation to the ends of the earth. Off he goes in the clothes "he wears, armed only with his wallet, his identification papers, and perhaps a memorandum book or something he may need to read. Whatever else he is likely to need he is likely to find on his way. Everyone moves about freely and poverty is something about which one reads in history books.

A total attendance of 870 was recorded at the annual teachers' summer school just closed at the University of Alberta. This compared with 981 last year. The school was operated jointly by the university and department of education.

Many a fisherman availed of the first opportunity to get a good soaking. Those who figured on spending Sunday whipping the waters of the North Fork and South Fork rivers, returned home in a drenching rain. Some, however, dared the elements and brought home good catches of trout.

Blairmore town council endorsed a petition to the Federal government demanding among other things the abolition of the mounted police. People living in Pass towns who remember the disorderly conduct caused by agitators in 1932 over labor disputes do not agree with such views, for the Federal force is far more efficient in maintaining order and preventing riots than any local police could be. It is hardly expected serious attention will be given to such demands as contained in the petition. —Coleman Journal.

Did you hear about the Blairmore woman, who was so worried about flies in her home that she decided to send to Toronto to get a cheap device to kill them off. Well, her next door neighbor brought an outfit from the local drugstore that had all the pests in her home down and out right long before her letter reached half its way east. And before the Toronto contrivance arrived, the addition to the flies' population amounted to 750,000,000. Just another reason why you should deal at home, at any cost.

Large bills were posted throughout The Pass last week, announcing the sixteenth annual show of the Bellevue and District Horticultural, Industrial and Poultry Society, which will be held on Labor Day, Monday, September the 4th. In spite of the dry season, a splendid display of exhibits in all classes is promised, including flowers, vegetables, fruit, school art, poultry, etc. The advertising poster is elaborate, quite in keeping with the exhibition. In connection, there will be the usual field sports programme.

Last week a man, alleged to be under the influence of intoxicants, was collecting money for a poor family for whom the town had provided in their distress, and used insolent and abusive language in the process. Perhaps nothing should be said of such an abused creature, but how can public sympathy and help be developed when such degraded specimens bite the hand that feeds them? The majority of people have charity in their hearts, and are willing to do their share in carrying the other fellow's burden, but they would indeed be worms if they subjected themselves to indignities which ignorance appears to engender. Col. Hugh Clark, whose humorous, yet true quotations attract wide attention, hits it right when he states: "The world is so heavily in debt that those who think it owes them a living are just out of luck." It is time that half-baked individuals who are always crying that everybody should help them but themselves, realized the fact. —Coleman Journal.

A DUTCHMAN'S ADDRESS TO HIS DOG

You was only a dog, but I wish I was you. Ven you go to bed you shust turn around three times and lay down; ven I go to bed I have to lock de place, vint up de clock, put out de cat, ondress myself, seeld mid my wife, talk mit the baby ven it cries, and then maybe ven I gets myself to bed, it is time to get up. Ven you get up, you shust stretch yourself, scratch your neck a luttile, and you was up. I haf to light the fire, put on de kiddie, scrap some vid my wife, and git myself some breakfast. You play around all day, and haf plenty of fun. I haf to work all day and plenty of trouble. Ven you die, you was dead; ven I die I haf to go to hell yet.

Sunday's rain did not reach far enough into B.C. to have any effect on the forest fires, which have been raging in the upper Elk and other districts.

There is no excuse for single unemployed men to resort to begging in the Pass towns. The federal relief camp west of Coleman is equipped to provide for 100 men, and if a man refuses to go to work there, he is not making an honest endeavor to help himself. Men who refuse to avail themselves of this work until they can by their own efforts find something better, are not deserving of help from the general public.

PREFERS COOTE TO BROWNLEE

The people of Canada have good ground for regarding commissions and conferences with suspicion.

The high hopes held out by the meeting of the Imperial Conference at Ottawa a year ago have never materialized. The World's Economic Conference held at London this summer was a self-confessed failure.

Various government commissions have been appointed from time to time to travel up and down the land reporting on this and that, generally with the result that nothing substantial has been accomplished.

One might take for instance the Stamp Commission which inquired into the grain trade, only to leave it almost exactly as it was; and, further, Sir Josiah Stamp, a man of extraordinary ability in his line, was unable to tell the people of the West one single thing about the grain trade which they did not already know better than Sir Josiah.

We come now to the newly appointed Bank Commission, which commences its sittings this week. The purpose of this commission is to inquire into the Bank Act, the various suggestions made to improve that Act and to make such recommendations to Parliament as may seem fit.

It has long been contended that the Canada Bank Act, or whatever its legal name may be, requires drastic amendment. Whether the contentions are correct or not, is not for us to say, since we do not feel qualified to talk about any sums larger than fifty cents, and the whole business of industrial, corporate and government financing is beyond our ken—as we suspect it is beyond the ken of most of the self-appointed experts on finance.

However, the appointment of a commission on banking was quite in order and it may be that this commission has behind it almost heavenly inspiration—but we doubt it.

The two British members of the commission, Lord Macmillan and Sir Charles Adair, gentlemen of great repute in their own country. There is no doubt that they will approach the inquiry with an open mind and be quite unprejudiced in their views. Nevertheless, they are financiers and as such doubtless worship the great God "Sound Money." But on them must depend the success of the commission, for there is nothing to hope for from the Canadian members, except Mr. Brownlee.

Sir Thomas White is the finest example extant of the hard-boiled tight-fisted Canadian banker. No one doubts his ability, but there is plenty of room for doubt that a new idea can percolate its way into his head. Considering that the Canadian banking system is regarded by most bankers as the best of all possible systems in this best of all possible worlds, one may safely look to Sir Thomas to stand firmly for the "Status quo," leaving it to the banks themselves to hunt up any changes or improvements which they in their wisdom conceive necessary.

Mr. Leman, of Montreal, is said to have a more progressive style of mind, but as a banker, he too will play for "safety first."

The Observer does not consider Mr. Brownlee a happy choice for the commission. So far as we know, Mr. Brownlee has made no specialty of economics, finance or banking matters, except along government lines. He cannot possibly have done so and given the attention he has to the thousands of other government activities in which he has been necessarily engaged. A far better appointment would have been Mr. G. G. Coote, M.P. for Macleod. Not that we agree with Mr. Coote, but because he has given this matter much study and is pre-eminently qualified to present the progressive, or even the radical, viewpoint on banking. That is what is needed and that is the only thing which will satisfy the people that the commission will bring forth satisfactory fruit.

If Mr. Coote were on the commission, one or three things might happen:

First, the other members might convince Mr. Coote that he is all wrong. In that case, the C.C.F. banking proposals would die a speedy death.

Second, Mr. Coote might convince the other members that his ideas are right. Such an unlikely contingency would lead to drastic recommendations affecting the Act.

Third, Mr. Coote might be unable to convince the other members, and they might be equally unable to convince him. But, at least, he could present his case and press it vigorously, much more vigorously than we expect Mr. Brownlee to do.

It is not too late for Mr. Bennett, or whoever is wielding power at Ottawa just now, to appoint another member to this commission. The Observer respectfully puts forward the name of Mr. Coote as the most desirable choice.—Vegreville Observer.

Mussolini Never Flinches

Even His Dentist Cannot Get Him To Admit Pain

"Il Duce never flinches—not even in a dentist's chair."

"Questo al fare soffrire un poco," says his dentist, like most of his profession when about to embark on some delicate explorations of the oral cavity.

And Mussolini's answer to his soothing remark, when translated means: "This is going to hurt a little bit." Invariably is:

"Non temo il dolore (I do not fear pain)."

Dr. Arrigo Pierno, of Rome, the man who for eight years has been the Italian dictator's private dentist, told how his patient carries on through the trials that make some strong men quail and whimper.

In Chicago to attend the Centennial Dental Congress, Dr. Pierno said Il Duce fears neither the snarl of the drill, or its descent into recesses of the tooth.

Assured by his patient that he has no fear of pain, he has borne down pretty hard at times, said Dr. Pierno. He hasn't been able to get a sound out of Mussolini in eight years.

Not a Certainty

Nazi Regime Will Go The Way Of All Such Movements

Chancellor Hitler says that the Nazi regime will endure forever. The interesting thing about that is that he is wrong but that he thinks he is right. After five or six thousand years of recorded history the average man and woman know that nothing, in this world at least, can endure forever, or even for any really long time. But movements such as Hitler expresses the kind of senseless fanaticism he enunciates to keep them going even the little while that they may endure.—New York Evening Post.

Tells Time By Lights

Huge Clock In Paris Has Not Regulation Face and Works

Parisians are seldom concerned over the time of day. There is inherent in the French temperament too great a capacity for enjoying the present moment to permit any particular preoccupation with the passage of the hours. Engraved in the pastime of appreciating culinary delights, for instance, the Parisian would probably be inclined to resent having a "Big Ben" boom out the fact that he has been at the luncheon table two hours already. The absence hitherto of any outstanding timepiece in Paris is probably explained by some such scruples, and at the same time explains the exceptionally great interest taken in the debut here of what is authoritatively described as "the biggest clock in the world." Certainly it is one of the "tallest," for it is placed about two-thirds of the way up the Eiffel Tower, at the height of 836 feet, it measures 83 feet in diameter. Besides its unusual dimensions, however, the French version of "Big Ben" has other claims to distinction. For although it is visible from almost any point in Paris, it has no face, no hands, and no works at least not in the usual sense of the terms. The answer is that the new clock is a luminous one. The hours, from one to twelve, are simply great colored lights, or reflectors. The "hands" are lines of electric light bulbs, which burn for a minute, then go out, and the line further on is then illuminated to turn in its succession for one minute. The hour "hand" operates in the same way, but of course more slowly. The "movement" is regulated by a synchronized electric motor.—Christian Science Monitor.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

RIPE GRAPE JELLY

4 cups (2 lbs.) juice.
7½ cups sugar.
½ bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, stem about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add ½ cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If Malaga or other tight-skinned grapes are used, the juice of 1 lemon should be added to prepared juice.)

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

CARROT AND CABBAGE SALAD

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin.
1 pint water.
2 tablespoons vinegar.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup raw carrots, grated.
1 cup raw cabbage, finely shredded.

Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add vinegar and salt. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in carrots and cabbage. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serves 8.

Historic Sites

Movement For Preservation Of Places Of National Interest Started In 1919

The movement for the preservation of national historic sites in Canada dates back to the year 1919. Representations were made to the then Dominion government urging the necessity of a national organization for the preservation of historic sites and as a result an honorary Historic Sites and Monuments Board was created. This board is composed of a number of eminent Canadian historians who have given their services without compensation. The recommendations of the board are made to the Department of the Interior, which through its national parks branch takes the necessary action.

Waiting For Equipment

Plans call for departure of the expedition from New Zealand in November.

Parisians can now read the time by a clock on the Eiffel tower, the illuminating at night lighting up a dial 61 feet in circumference.

Problems Of Statesmen

Not So Easy To Manage Affairs In These Days

It is, of course, unfair to judge modern statesmen by the old standards. Statescraft today has not only to handle complexities that were undreamt of fifty or a hundred years ago, but it has to reckon with a democracy so keenly alive to its own importance that in all the chancelleries of the world it has become the terror that walketh by night. It was easy to run Europe—even to ruin it—when the Man on the Street was merely a speck on the horizon.—Glasgow Weekly Herald.

Belongs To "Flying Family"

Lord Londonderry's Youngest Daughter Becoming Efficient Flier

Lord Londonderry, air minister, whose family may well be known as the flying family, has just gained his "A" certificate for flying at Heston air port, Middlesex.

To do this he completed a three-hour solo flight and passed an attitude test, and is now allowed to fly a machine, though he cannot take up paying passengers.

A few days earlier Lord Londonderry's second daughter, Lady Margaret Stewart, also qualified for her "A" certificate, and his youngest daughter, Lady Mary Stewart, who is not yet 13, is rapidly becoming an accomplished flier.

Lady Mary is one of the youngest, if not the youngest, of flying pupils, and she is making such splendid progress that it will not be long before she will be able to make a solo flight. Her instructor is Capt. V. H. Baker, chief inspector at Heston, who says she cannot obtain a certificate until she is 17, but will be permitted to fly solo within three miles of the aerodrome.

Capt. Baker also said that on his height test Lord Londonderry went up to 2,000 feet, shut off his engine and glided on to the aerodrome well within the specified landing area.

The Late Dr. Macoun

Contributed Largely In Establishing Possibilities Of Agriculture In West

The death at Ottawa of Dr. William Terrill Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist was recently reported. After taking ill on his annual inspection of experimental farms during which he attended the World's Grain Exhibition at Regina, he returned to his Ottawa home early in August. Dr. Macoun was in his 65th year.

His career in horticulture, which to him was both a profession and a hobby, has been outstanding. His efforts in establishing the possibilities of the western provinces for agriculture date back to the '70s. Assisted by his wife, he gave many years to the breeding of new varieties of apples, and by the unanimous vote of the American Pomological Society, convening at Roanoke, Virginia, in 1930, was awarded the Wilder silver medal.

Born at Belleville, Ont., in 1869, Dr. Macoun joined the Dominion Central Experimental Farm when 18 years of age.

Surviving him are one son and three daughters, residing in Ottawa, and a sister, Mrs. R. A. Kingman, Wallingford, Vt.

Caravans Travel By Tractor

Camels No Longer Take Mohammedans To Holy City

The romanian camel caravan of the Arabians who desert has gone into history, according to Rev. S. M. Zwemer, Presbyterian missionary.

Automobile bodies adjusted to caterpillar tractors have entirely supplanted the camel, he said today, in carrying the thousands of Mohammedans across Arabia on their annual visits to the Holy City.

Even in these dull years, he said, at least 50,000 annually make the pilgrimage.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 27

SAUL

Golden Text: "Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice."—1 Samuel 15:22.

Lesson: 1 Samuel, Chapters 9-11, 15. Devotional Reading: Psalm 40:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

Saul Desecrates Samuel's Order, verses 1-12.—Samuel directed Saul to utterly destroy the Amalekites—all the people and all their possessions. Saul carried out the order, only he spared Agag the King of the Amalekites, and the best of their sheep, oxen, fattings and lambs. It was really a test whether the king would be ruled by God through Samuel his prophet, or whether he would be a self-willed despot. He proved to be the latter.

Clearing what Saul had done Samuel was very angry and set out to meet him. Saul's Falsehood and Then His Attempt to Shift the Blame, verses 13-15. "Blessed be thou of Jehovah," were Saul's words of greeting when Samuel met him at Gilgal. This was a common form of salutation, yet Saul's use of it here may have indicated a guilty conscience and a desire to conciliate the prophet by a gracious greeting.

When my ten-year-old son comes in from school with an affectionate greeting, I begin to sit up and take notice. When he is unusually volatile, and his laughter seems forced, I think at once of a partridge fluttering across the hunter's path with drooping wing, to lure him from his near-by nest. When he manifests an extraordinary solicitude for my needs and for my fatigue under the duties of the day I am sure that something has happened at school; and if he is careful to steer all the conversation away from the school, I know that I must begin to conduct a catechism.

Then Saul sought to forestall the accusation which he felt was coming by stoutly announcing, "I have performed the commandment of Jehovah." He was convicted of falsehood by circumstantial evidence, for Samuel asked, "What meanest thou, this beating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowering of the oxen which I see?"

Ah, yes, those oxen and sheep! Saul may have said, while he hastily thought what answer he could give for the presence of the large stock. "But those belong to the people, it was they who spared them," he then said. "That the king whose word was law should attempt to excuse his violation of the prophet's commandment, he could not help but help the people were responsible, was very weak. Having shifted the blame from his own shoulders, he proceeded to the next step, namely, claiming that the animals were the best of the spoil and had been preserved for the benefit of the people. He then turned to God. Recall Aaron's excuse for the golden calf. The people had brought their gold and had cast it into the furnace, and there came out this calf," he said to Moses, when Moses arrived for his sin. He, too, declared that the motive was good, he had built an altar before the Lord, and the people had sacrificed to Jehovah. Adam blamed Eve, and Eve blamed the serpent.

"Very rarely indeed does a man excuse himself to other men and yet remain absolutely excused in his own eyes. When Pilate stood washing the responsibility of Christ's murder from his hands before the people, was he feeling himself as if his hands grew cleaner while he washed? Men differ, perhaps, nowhere else more than in their disposition to face the acts of others and to recognize their own personal part in the responsibility for the things they do. I did it, I did it, let me say to all my wickedness. Let me refuse to listen for one moment to any voice which would make me sin less mine."—Phillips Brooks.

Ignore Shell Fire

Halifax Yachtsmen Have Faith In Marksmanship Of Artillery

Artillery men who direct their fire at floating targets in Halifax harbor pay no attention to yachts that cross their line of fire—and the yachtsmen pay no attention to them.

Racing yachts tack back and forth in the firing area each Saturday afternoon but none of them has ever been hit. High velocity shells scream directly overhead, passing within a few feet of the boats before they splash into the water near the targets and the yachtsmen continue placidly on their course.

Thus was when the yachtsmen would keep a wary eye on the guns as their craft entered the danger zone; but now, so accurate is modern artillery marksmanship, they no longer regard it as a danger zone and sail by with scarcely a glance at the battery.

Idea Is Sound One

Gloomy Dean Thinks Ministers Should Have Knowledge Of Medicine

Dean Inge has an idea that it would be a good thing to have ministers study a little medicine. He made the suggestion at the London hospital medical college and dental school, where he was distributing prizes, and hastened to add that the did not want persons to usurp the proper functions of doctors. His idea is a sound one. It has no so common sense in it that it will probably never be put into practice. Man is a curious being. Made up of soul, mind and body which react on one another in many complex ways, he has to be studied as a whole. The intersection between the physical and moral sides of a man's nature should not be ignored by the clergyman. A minister's work would be more effective if he had enough medical training to tell him when a person who was morally ill required also medical treatment, and to have harmony restored.—Hamilton Spectator.

Chivalry In Chicago

Young Man Proved His Willingness To Oblige New York Visitor

The thing that impressed a New York woman most about Chicago when she visited there for a few days was not the Century Progress at all, but the gesture of a young man one afternoon on a street car. The New York lady, who is youthful and pretty, was riding on this street car from the Loop to the house of the friend she was visiting. She thought she knew where to get off, but pushed the button too soon, and the car stopped two blocks before her corner. When nobody got off the motorman turned and glared. "Well, you got off here?" growled the motorman. The young lady was too scared to say anything. Finally a young man sitting beside her tongue-tied heroine stood up. "Well," he said, "I'll get off if no one else will." And he did.—The New Yorker.

It was merely by chance that he traced his child to her present address in Lille, France.

Hard To Break Habit

Southerners Having Difficulty In Making Mules Plough Up Cotton

An unexpected difficulty attending the use of the United States government's cotton reduction campaign comes from the humble, if stubborn, mule. Paul A. Porter, of the administration, returning to Washington from the south, reported that many farmers had complained they found difficulty in getting their mules to "act right," while plowing up the cotton. "It isn't the mule's fault," at that," Porter explained. "All these years he has been lambasted if he walked atop the cotton row. Now it is the reverse, and he is being asked—if used singly—to trample down the stalks he has been trained so carefully to protect."

June Production For Canada Given As 1,965,647 Pairs

The June production of leather footwear in Canada at 1,965,647 pairs was the largest output recorded for any month since January, 1929. That figure represents an increase of 211,083 pairs or 12 per cent over the preceding month and an increase of 408,455 pairs or 26 per cent for the corresponding period last year. Exports of leather footwear in June last amounted to 2,081 pairs, an increase over the preceding month of 1,659 pairs and an increase of 776 pairs over June, 1929.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful student in an art school, unconsciously sketches the head of a fellow student during the class and when she is supposed to be drawing a Grecian urn. The professor, looking at her sketch, embarrasses Camilla by having Peter Anson, the boy whose head she sketched, criticize her work before the class. Afterwards Camilla goes to the park outside to cry. A hand touches her shoulder. It turns out to be Peter, who apologizes for his action and consoles her. Camilla secretly addresses him. He makes a date to see her that evening but is outwitted when she names an expensive night club. It is far beyond his means but he resolves to go through with it. Peter takes her to the theatre first and then to the night club where they meet some of Camilla's friends. After taking her home, Peter resolves not to take Camilla out again, because of the expense. He is only a struggling artist. Camilla wonders why he did not ask her to go out again.

[Now Go On With the Story]

CHAPTER V.

Peter let himself into the ugly room which he shared with Gus Matson. He despised its blatant wallpaper and clumsy furnishings, but his artistic and imaginative eye looked beyond it to the beautiful studio suite that he would occupy some day, and endured it. Gus' hands were covered with gray modeling clay. He wore a soiled red suede jacket. Peter's and smoked a briar pipe.

"This is a swell hour to be in," he checked in, he reproached Peter. "Out with some skirt?"

"Another high-gat dame, I suppose, since you didn't invite me to the party. If you'd take my advice popular everywhere Gus was an outsider—only Peter's friend, which tendered him a certain advantage.

"Cost you plenty, too, I'll bet," Gus continued his reproach.

"Too much," Peter conceded. "But it was worth it."

"Is the going to finance you for a couple of years in Paris?"

"No—oh, no—I only meant that being with her tonight was worth the money it cost me."

Gus snorted. "If you don't watch your step, you'll be falling for some dame and lose your balance completely. Well, c'mon, it's time we hit the hay."

"You insist on waiting up for me, don't you, mama?" Peter grinned with good humor. "I appreciate your concern, but really I'm a big boy now and can take myself in."

"That's what you think. But you know I can't sleep while you're prowling around, and you might be considerate enough to turn in at a decent hour once in a while."

Quarrelling with Gus was worse than arguing with a woman, because he not only had the last word, but he never sought a reconciliation later. Peter kept his silence. He was determined to see Gus through the year. Next month would be the end. He had offered to help him early in the year and had taken him in out of sympathy when he got down with pneumonia and almost developed tuberculosis, due partly to undernourishment. Gus was hanging on to the final National, with a tenuous grip on Peter; then he would show the world something, he boasted. Success to Gus was like a high dive—one big spectacular splash, and you were made. Peter suspected that it was more of an endurance swim, for which you had to train patiently.

"Cost You Plenty, I'll Bet."

and quit tryin' to be a highbrow, you'd get farther," he sneered.

"It's the highbrows who will put me where I want to be, Gus, and you, too," Peter offered cheerfully. The scene was familiar to him. Gus had ambitions similar to his, but he was envious of Peter. His plain almost ugly face and sandy hair added nothing to an unattractive personality. He was clever at modeling and a hard worker, and Peter wished mightily that he could persuade Gus to cultivate more graciousness. He was fond of the fellow in a way, but Gus scorned all such suggestions, believing that he knew all about the proper attitude toward a hard-boiled world. At the same time he profited by other advantages which his association with Peter afforded him. Obligated as he was to economize, Peter never was parsimonious, and his personal charm enabled him to earn more than Gus, who resented that his friend was favored everywhere; by the teachers, the landlady, employers, friends and acquaintances. Peter was

The next few days went very badly for Peter. Professor Drake's class met only two days a week, so he did not see Camilla again until on Friday.

She had feared that he would not communicate with her soon, hoped anxiously that he would, and she plunged into humiliation and despair when he did not. One evening with her had been enough for him, she decided. A one-nighter she might have known. Handsome men like Peter invariably were conceited philanderers. The conquest of a woman's heart did not appeal to him, because he knew that he could have any woman of his choice without a conquest.

She wished miserably that she had refused to go out with him the first time he asked her. That might have stimulated his interest for a longer time. Then what if he never asked her again? At least, she had one sweet memory to cherish in her heart through the long bleak years ahead. They were going to be so desolate—without Peter.

Her greeting, the next time they met, was constrained. Camilla was alone because he had made no attempt to see her again; Peter was reticent because there wasn't a chance that he could ask her for another date. Seeing their cool hostility, no one could have guessed that a few evenings previously they had danced in ecstatic embrace, been oblivious of the world in their thoughts of each other.

Peter astonished the professor with the worst work he ever had done and Camilla astonished even herself by doing her best. Such is the illogical effect of youthful love. But Camilla was spunky and determined. When ever she resolved to do a thing, she did it completely. Her latest resolution was to show Peter Anson that she had completely forgotten him and was devoting herself to her work. So when Professor Drake exhibited her work to the class as the best for the day, her triumph was sweet. The moment class was dismissed, she hurried away without a backward glance. Professor Drake detained Peter. "What's the matter, Anson? No keeping late hours, I hope?"

"No, sir," soberly. "My off day, I guess."

"Well, you can't afford to have many of those if you maintain your record. By the way, you are planning to compete for the Paris scholarship award in the fall, aren't you?"

"There can be no exception to the plan. I expect you to have an entry in the exhibit."

"I'll try for it."

"Something is wrong, Anson. Is there anything I can do?"

"Peter's head went up defiantly. "Thank you, sir. No, there's nothing you can do. I'll manage somehow."

"Then if I can be of any assistance in advising you about the exhibit, let me know."

"Thanks, I'll do that." Peter escaped his quick inspection and swung through the entrance of the building into the path which cut through the park toward the museum. He usually took the shorter way, and it was on one of the benches near the blue hedge that he had found Camilla several days before. She, not knowing that he passed that way often, had gone there directly from class, to be alone and think what to do about Peter.

He found her there again. She was not crying this time, but even before he saw him, he knew by the frown in her little picture that she was afflicted with the black-blue again. Why a girl like Camilla should have any kind of blues was beyond his imagination. She led the world in her lip. Perhaps that was just why she didn't know what real trouble was, so the least difficulty assumed exaggerated proportions for her.

His step on the path startled her. "Oh!" she exclaimed and flushed.

He had been startled, too, seeing her there where they had first talked together, but had had a moment to calm his violent reactions before she discovered him.

He smiled ruefully. "Is this a favorite rendezvous of yours?"

"This is a public park, isn't it?" she retorted with a calmness that belied the furious beating of her heart which his sudden appearance had disturbed. Always, she felt as if she must resent anything Peter Anson said to her, at the same time that she wanted so much for him to talk to her. And wondered why she could resent him so much when she loved him so.

"Why—of course," his tone was puzzled at the defense in her voice. "That is why I take this path from the art school to the museum. And because I like to walk here, especially now when the lilacs are in bloom."

"That is why I like to come here, too," her voice was softer and she looked up at him with a timid smile. (To Be Continued.)

Sheep In Long Trek

After passing through country generally considered impassable, Drover Jack Brady and eight helpers have just completed a drive of 7,500 sheep for 1,300 miles from Mackinac to Snowtown, Australia. To water the animals in desert spots a pumping plant and troughing was carried. The trip required 20 weeks and at night a guard against raids by wild dogs was necessary. Only 300 sheep died on the trip.

Advance in Wireless

Communication With Micro Waves Being Developed

Communication with micro waves a foot and a half long over distances greater than the range of vision and through or around physical obstacles was reported before the science department of the Royal Academy by Guglielmo Marconi, noted wireless inventor of Italy.

Engineers had believed such opaque objects as buildings, mountains, etc., had the same effect on these waves as would be in the case with a searchlight or other form of light beam.

In a series of tests conducted between the inventor's yacht "Eleftra" in the Tyrrhene sea, and inland Italy, Marconi said that both radio-telephone and radiotelegraph messages had been exchanged with the experimental station at Santa Margherita, 95 miles landward, a distance three times further than he had been able to get heretofore.

Even with the "Eleftra" anchored at Porto Santo Stefano, a distance of 161 miles from Santa Margherita, faint code messages on a 60-centimetre wave were picked up on the yacht despite two intervening mountainous promontories, indicating that the micro waves were not hindered by opaque objects.

Twenty-five watts of power were used, Marconi said, in a newly developed micro-wave combined transmitter and receiver. He added that he hoped through the development of more sensitive apparatus to be able to bring about further important advancements in the art of radio communication.

Floating Airports For 'Planes

What Seemed Like Fantastic Dream Now Virtually a Reality

A vision of once fanciful dream of conducting a regular trans-Atlantic service with the use of floating airports has virtually become a reality.

Following successful tests with the steamship "Westphalen" anchored in mid-Atlantic between Africa and Brazil, German "Lufthansa" plans to inaugurate in the autumn an air-mail service between Germany and Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and other South American points.

Two planes will be used, each making half of the ocean trip. Terminal points will be Bathurst, British Africa, and Natal, Brazil. The plane, for example, which departs from Bathurst will proceed to the steamer (one day's flight), transfer its mail to the second plane, which will then be catapulted on the second stage of the journey (also a day's flight) to Natal.

Aboard the floating airport, the waiting plane will be thoroughly checked over and refueled for the return trip.

Each plane will carry a personnel of three men, including a radio operator. Mail will be brought to, and taken from, each terminal point by land planes.

Lufthansa officials told the United Press that the two-and-a-half months' tests entirely proved the practicability of the project. It is now planned to purchase and equip a second vessel as a relief for the "Westphalen."

Japan Stages Sham Battle

Elaborate Performance Of Aerial Attack Seen By Millions

Fifteen million people in Tokyo and surrounding prefectures watched wartime life when a three-day sham battle for possession of the capital was launched by the army and the navy.

Three times during the day "enemy" aeroplanes roared overhead and sirens screamed warnings to the populace. Smoke bombs and var-colored vapors were loosed in the streets, simulating poison gas and incendiary explosives.

Emergency hospitals were set up and to them stretcherbearers wearing gas masks, carried the supposed victims from public parks and the role of big department stores anti-aircraft guns and machine-guns boomed and chattered.

There was one genuine casualty. A girl watching one of the air raids from a roof fell and was killed.

The campaign was the last of the air raids came from enemy battleships approaching Tokyo Bay from the mid-Pacific. The whole show formed the second phase of the grand air manoeuvres of the navy.

Blown To Safety

When an explosion followed the fall of an aeroplane into the sea at Skegness, England, and wreckage was strewn over the water, life-savers who went to the rescue in a speed-boat thought their trip useless. They found the flyer swimming about unhurt. The man in the boat had blown him clear of the plane.

Pure White Swallows

Strange Albino Birds Found In Quebec Village

Reports that a nest of pure white swallows has been discovered in a house at Danville, Que., have aroused considerable interest among ornithologists in Montreal.

Miss Edna E. Wilson, of Danville, who made the discovery, declares that the nest of pure white swallows has been raised by ordinary barn swallows.

"There are three fully grown birds now," she says.

M. Mousley, bird expert at McGill University, points out that while white swallows are not unknown, it is phenomenal that the entire brood of two swallows apparently normal should be albinos.

"The finding of a nest of white swallows," he said, "is extremely important in research work on ornithology and genetics. I intend to follow up the matter immediately."

If it is true that the entire brood are pure albinos and that the parent birds are normally pigmented, the finding, it is pointed out, will cause heated discussion among savants in the field of heredity, for such a discovery seemingly transgresses the known laws of heredity. The natural condition would be to find the brood mixed, some showing signs of albinism and others being normal.

Moisture Conservation

Policy Of Cutting Down Trees Instead Of Planting Them

We have been penny-wise, pound foolish, in western Canada. We have worked at drainage, to bring little tracts of land under cultivation for our needs, when what we really needed was to work as hard as we could at the conservation of the available moisture. And we have cut down trees for firewood when we should have been planting them in hundreds of millions.

The most enlightened project in the United States today is the reforestation plan on which the unemployed are being put to work. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta should be working on the same lines, to the limit of their resources.

The single unemployed men's camps in western Canada are mainly employed in cutting down trees, clearing national parks, and so forth. They would be much better employed in planting trees, over large areas, in the southern farming section, and in building dams on the South Saskatchewan and other rivers to create reservoirs for subsoil moisture.—Winnipeg Tribune.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alina Michaels

TIME

Time is so kind, yet strangely cruel.

For slowly, hour by hour, and day by day,

He blurs the well-loved image in the mind,

Although the heart would have each clear line stay.

He tells unreluctingly, without a pause,

With imperceptible, small movements steals

The memories that are the cherished cause

Of all the grief the stricken spirit feels.

His skilful hands thus in the end efface

Those things once held most precious in the thought;

More faint, more dim, until no misty trace

Of voice or eye or passion's self is caught.

Forgetting, then, all glories left behind,

Our lives grow calm, we say that time is kind.

Women Detectives

Three Women Appointed To Staff Of Scotland Yard

Three women have been appointed as permanent members of the detective staff at Scotland Yard for the first time in the history of the metropolitan police.

The innovation, the latest of many reforms recently initiated by Lord Trenchard, the chief commissioner, followed experimental tests of women's aptitude for criminal investigation which proved eminently successful.

Establishing T.B. Colony

Amid the vine-clad slopes of the Dordogne, France, has been established a community of hope. For Clairville, the French town, newly arisen, near Salagnac, offers new life for the ex-servicemen fighting his last long battle with tuberculosis. Clairville was planned that tubercular ex-servicemen should not be separated from their families. It will accommodate 3,000 inhabitants.

Little Helps For This Week

"I have taught thee in the way of wisdom; I have led thee in right paths."—Proverbs 4:2.

We know not what the path may be. As yet, we are untrod; But we can trust our lot to Thee, Our Father and our God.

—W. J. Irons.

We have very little command over the circumstances in which we may be called by God to bear a part, unlimited command over the temper of our souls, but next to no command over the outward form of trial. The most energetic will cannot order the events by which our spirits are to be tested. Powers quite beyond our reach, death, accident, fortune, another's sin, may change in a moment all the conditions of our life. With tomorrow's sun existence may have new aspects for any one of us—J. H. Thom.

Look not out at what stands in the way, but look in where the law of life is written, and the will of the know what is the Lord's will concerning these. I. Pennington.

Girl Finds Ancient Well

Expedition In Palestine Owes Success To Her Bravery

It was mainly through the bravery of a Sudanese girl named Salome that an ancient well was discovered in Palestine. The Garstand expedition found a hole only large enough to hold the form of a slim woman. Salome volunteered to find what lay below. She was lowered by a rope into the hole and dug along its course for 50 feet. Then she was hauled to the surface and men replaced her at the work. When several large boulders were removed a well nearly 250 feet was discovered. It was 18 feet of water, which was quite possible. The find was at Tell-Duweir, and experts believe the well was sunk in the time of the Hyksos, a dynasty of Egyptian rulers often called the "Shepherd Kings."
